It appears to me that if individuals or agencies would confine themselves to the proper and generally accepted definitions of many of the so called controversial terms that are already defined in current military and non-military dictionaries that the list contained in Table C would be substantially reduced.

Those controversial terms then remaining could be defined by a committee consisting of one member from each interested agency. This committee could then compile a glossary of the controversial terms together with such other terms in general use for which the definition might not be readily accessible to one or more agencies.

Comment No. 3 -

It seems to me that if CIG is taking up the definitions of intelligence terms a complete job of it should be made by providing a glossary of intelligence terms in printed form for the use of all U.S. intelligence agencies and intelligence schools.

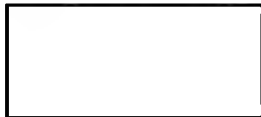

I therefore recommend that after all offices have submitted their lists, as requested in our memo of 4 Oct, a group be formed of representatives from OCD, ORE, OSO and ICAPS. I believe this group should equip itself with all current lists of intelligence terminology such as those referred to in par 1 a. & b., as well as the publications given in par 3 c, and produce a complete glossary which then should be sent to the NIA member agencies for comments. When finally approved it should be reproduced in large numbers, in printed form, for extensive dissemination.

If it is considered that personnel shortages do not warrant this effort at present it could be started on a more modest basis, and subsequently expanded to full glossary size.

Comment No 2.

- Recommend:-
1. OC & D. be again requested to submit definitions of definitions pertinent to their activities
 2. Definitions recommended by CIG to JCS. be left unchanged.
 3. CIG. (+ WIA.) attempt to establish only those definitions which are of immediate concern to its own operations and which cause confusion and misunderstanding between the military and civilian branches of the government
 4. Attached Tab "C"  is much too long.

REMARKS:

① Recd. C & D be asked to supply definitions of terms they consider pertinent to their functions. Get same from S.O. & R & E. Then appoint a committee to meet with ICAPS & make final recs. After which pass to agencies for comment. Expand to other terms later. WMA.
